3. Changes in the entity's structure in the interim period, including changes which follow from mergers, acquisitions or sale of subsidiaries, long-term investments, restructuring or discontinuation of business

Since the end of the previous financial year, i.e. December 31st 2018 (see Note 2 to the consolidated financial statements for 2018), there have been no material changes in the structure of the Group.

4. Basis of preparation and presentation

These interim condensed consolidated financial statements of the LOTOS Group (the "interim consolidated financial statements", "interim financial statements", "consolidated financial statements", "financial statements") have been prepared in accordance with the EU-endorsed International Accounting Standard IAS 34 Interim Financial Reporting.

These interim condensed consolidated financial statements present the financial position of the Group as at June 30th 2019 and December 31st 2018, the results of the Group's operations for the six months ended June 30th 2019 and June 30th 2018, and cash flows for the six months ended June 30th 2019 and June 30th 2018.

These interim financial statements should be read in conjunction with the audited consolidated financial statements of the LOTOS Group for 2018, issued on March 12th 2019 (the "consolidated financial statements for 2018„).

The data presented in these interim consolidated financial statements as at June 30th 2019 and for the six months ended on that date, as well as the comparative financial data for the six months ended June 30th 2018, was reviewed by an auditor. The financial data for the three months ended June 30th 2019 as well as the comparative financial data for the three months ended June 30th 2018 included in these interim consolidated financial statements was not reviewed by an auditor. Data as at December 31st 2018 was audited. The auditor's report on the consolidated financial statements for 2018 was issued on March 11th 2019.

These interim condensed consolidated financial statements have been prepared on the assumption that the Group companies will continue as going concerns for the foreseeable future. As at the date of authorisation of these financial statements for issue, no circumstances were identified which would indicate any threat to the Group companies' continuing as going concerns.

The Parent's functional currency and the reporting currency of these interim consolidated financial statements is the Polish złoty, and all amounts presented herein, unless indicated otherwise, are stated in millions of złoty.

4.1 Accounting policies

The accounting policies and calculation methods applied in the preparation of these interim condensed consolidated financial statements are the same as those applied in the preparation of the consolidated financial statements for 2018 (see Note 7 to the consolidated financial statements for 2018), except for the policies which were introduced following the adoption, as of January 1st 2019, of the new standard IFRS 16 Leases. For a discussion of the effect of the new standards on the Group's accounting policies, see Note 4 to the consolidated financial statements for 2018 and below.

Overview of the standard

IFRS 16 Leases
IFRS 16 is effective for annual periods beginning on or after January 1st 2019 and has been endorsed by the European Union. It replaces the previously applied IAS 17 as well as IFRIC 4, SIC-15 and SIC-27.	The new standard introduces a single lease accounting model in the lessee's accounting books, which is similar to the recognition of finance leases under IAS 17. Under IFRS 16, a contract is a lease or contains a lease component if it transfers the right to control the use of the identified asset for a given period for consideration. An essential element that differentiates the definitions of lease under IAS 17 and IFRS 16 is the requirement to exercise control over a specific asset used, identified in the contract explicitly or implicitly. The right-of-use is conveyed where the lessee has both the right to direct the identified asset's use and to obtain substantially all the economic benefits from that use in the period. If the definition of lease is satisfied, the lessee recognises a right-of-use asset and a lease liability, initially measured at the present value of the lease payments to be made over the lease term. Expenditure related to the use of leased assets, previously largely included in cost of services, is now classified as depreciation and interest expense. Right-of-use assets are depreciated using the straight-line method, while lease liabilities are accounted for using the effective interest rate.

Selected accounting policies

The Company as a lessee

The Group uses a single accounting model for leases under which the lessee recognises right-of-use assets and lease liabilities for all leases except short-term leases and leases of low-value assets.

Short-term leases are leases with a term of 12 months or less, containing no purchase options. In particular, the Group defines as short-term leases contracts made for an indefinite term which may be terminated on a short notice (up to 12 months) without any significant penalty imposed on the party.

The materiality level defined by the Group to identify low-value leases is PLN 20 thousand for entities whose functional currency is PLN, and the equivalent of USD 5 thousand for entities whose functional currency is other than PLN. The value of the underlying asset is measured based on the value of the asset when it is new, regardless of the age of the leased asset.

An asset is typically identified by being explicitly specified in a contract, but an asset can also be identified by being implicitly specified at the time it is made available for use by the customer.
The Group recognises a right-of-use asset and a lease liability upon commencement of a contract under which control of the use of specified assets is transferred for a certain period of time. The date of commencement of a lease contract is the date on which the leased asset is made available to the Group as the lessee.

A right-of-use asset is initially measured at cost which includes:

- the amount of the lease liability initially measured,
- any lease payments made at or prior to commencement, less any lease incentives received,
- any initial direct costs incurred by the lessee,
- the initial estimate of the costs of dismantling and removing the underlying asset and restoring the site on which it is located.

Right-of-use assets are recognised in the statement of financial position as property, plant and equipment (Property, plant and equipment of the Refining and Marketing segment and Property, plant and equipment of the Exploration and Production segment, as appropriate). Perpetual usufruct right to land acquired for a consideration or received free of charge is recognised in the same manner as other lease contracts (as right-of-use assets and lease liabilities). To calculate assets and liabilities related to perpetual usufruct, the Group conducts an analysis to determine the anticipated term of perpetual usufruct. Once the anticipated term of perpetual usufruct has been determined, the lease liability is calculated in accordance with general principles. The perpetual usufruct rights to land recognised as at December 31st 2018 have been reclassified as right-of-use assets and recognised based on the amount determined before the date of transition to IFRS 16.

After the lease commencement date, the right-of-use asset is measured at cost less accumulated depreciation and accumulated impairment losses. If there is a lease modification, the right-of-use asset is adjusted to the remeasurement of the lease liability (reflecting changes resulting from the lease modification or revision of the discount rate).

Decommissioning costs are capitalised as part of the right-of-use asset and amortised over the estimated useful life of the asset. The fair value of decommissioning costs is estimated by the Group in accordance with the methodology specified in IFRIC 1.

A lease liability is initially measured at the present value of lease payments outstanding at that date, including:

- fixed lease payments net of any lease incentives,
- variable lease payments that depend on an index or a rate, initially measured using the index or rate as at the commencement date;
- amounts expected to be payable by the lessee under residual value guarantees;
- the exercise price of a purchase option if exercise of that option by the lessee is reasonably certain;
- lease termination penalties if the lessee is entitled to exercise the option to terminate the lease.

Lease payments do not include variable charges that depend on external factors. Variable lease payments not included in the initial measurement of a lease liability are recognised directly in profit or loss.

After initial recognition, the Group measures lease liabilities by:

- increasing the carrying amount to reflect interest on the lease liability,
- reducing the carrying amount to reflect the lease payments made, and
- remeasuring the carrying amount in order to take into account a lease reassessment or modification, or to take account of revised substantially fixed lease payments, including increases or reductions due to index changes in the case of index-linked contracts.

Upon lease commencement, and to the extent that the costs are not included in the carrying amount of another asset in accordance with applicable standards other than IFRS 16, the lessee recognises in profit or loss both interest on the lease liability and variable lease payments not included in the measurement of the lease liability in the period in which the event or condition that triggers payment occurs.

Lease payments are discounted using the interest rate implicit in the lease or the Group's incremental borrowing rate when the interest rate implicit in the lease cannot be readily determined. To determine the incremental borrowing rate, the Group takes into account the type of contract, the duration of the contract, the currency of the contract and the potential margin it would have to pay to external financial institutions if it wanted to enter into such a transaction on the financial market.

The Group determined incremental borrowing rates in a breakdown by contract currency and taking into account contract term, based on the time brackets presented below:

- short-term contracts (12 months or shorter),
- contracts for a term of 1 to 2 years (inclusive),
- contracts for a term of 2 to 5 years (inclusive),
- contracts for a term of 5 to 10 years (inclusive),
- contracts for a term of more than 10 years.

The process of determining a current incremental borrowing rate consists of the following steps:

- an analysis of the lessee's current financing structure (e.g., the debt instruments held by the lessee and their terms);
- determination of the appropriate reference rate – assuming specific currency, economic conditions and lease term;
- analysis of other material lease terms, including the nature of the underlying assets.

To calculate discount rates for the purposes of IFRS 16, the Group assumes that the discount rate should reflect the cost that it would have to pay to borrow the funds necessary to purchase the leased asset.

The Group enters into lease contracts based on the three principal currencies to which it has assigned the base discount rate, i.e., PLN with the WIBOR base rate for a specific term, EUR with the EURIBOR base rate for a specific term, and USD with the LIBOR base rate for a specific term. These base rates apply to short-term foreign-currency leases. Base discount rates for long-term leases are determined on a case-by-case basis.

Effect of IFRS 16 on the financial statements

The Group carried out an analysis aimed at identifying the agreements under which it uses assets owned by third parties. Each of the agreements so identified was reviewed in terms of satisfying the criteria to be classified as a lease in accordance with IFRS 16. Based on the review, the effect of IFRS 16 on the individual items of the Group's financial statements was calculated.

The Group also made appropriate changes to its accounting policies and operational procedures. It developed and implemented methodologies for correct identification of agreements which are leases as well as for collection of data necessary to correctly account for such transactions.

The Group decided to implement the standard starting from January 1st 2019. In accordance with the transitional provisions of IFRS 16, the new policies were adopted retrospectively: the cumulative impact of applying IFRS 16 was accounted for as an adjustment to equity as at January 1st 2019. Accordingly, the comparative data for the financial year 2018 has not been restated (modified retrospective approach).

IFRS 16 introduces a new definition of lease. However, the Company used a practical expedient for transition and did not re-assess whether the contracts previously classified included leases. Therefore, the definition of lease compliant with IAS 17 and IFRIC 4 will continue to apply to lease contracts, concluded or amended before January 1st 2019.

Below are presented the individual adjustments made due to the implementation of IFRS 16.

Recognition of lease liabilities

Upon adopting IFRS 16, the Group recognised lease liabilities related to agreements previously classified as operating leases in accordance with the requirements of IAS 17. These liabilities have been measured at the present value of lease payments outstanding at the start of application of IFRS 16, discounted using the Group's interest rate as at the date of adoption of the standard.

Lease liability	Jan 1 2019
Operating lease liabilities as at December 31st 2018	1,372.0
Effect of discounting using the Group's incremental borrowing rate as at January 1st 2019	(486.5)
Short-term leases recognised as expense in the period	(37.0)
Leases of low-value assets recognised as expense in the period	(0.4)
Other[(1)]	243.5
Total lease liabilities recognised as at January 1st 2019	1,091,6
Financial liabilities under finance leases recognised as at December 31st 2018	180.0
Total lease liabilities	1,271.6

[(1)] Applicable mainly to perpetual usufruct of land not classified as operating lease as at December 31st 2018.

Use of practical expedients

When first applying IFRS 16, the Group applied the following practical expedients available under the standard:

- application of a single discount rate to a portfolio of leases with similar characteristics,
- treatment of operating leases whose remaining term as at January 1st 2019 was less than 12 months as short-term leases,
- exclusion of initial direct costs from the measurement of the right-of-use assets at the date of initial application, and
- use of hindsight in determining the lease term if the contract contains options to extend or terminate the lease.

Effect on equity

The implementation of IFRS 16 had no effect on retained earnings or equity as at January 1st 2019 due to the fact that the right-of-use assets and lease liabilities were recognised in the same amount.

Effect on financial ratios

Given the fact that practically all leases were recognised in the consolidated statement of financial position, the implementation of IFRS 16 by the Group affected its balance sheet ratios, including the debt to equity ratio. In addition, the implementation of IFRS 16 resulted in changes to the profit metrics (e.g. operating profit, EBITDA) and to cash flows from operating activities. The Group analysed the implications of these changes for the fulfilment of covenants contained in its credit facility agreements. No risk of default was identified.

4.4 Change of information presented in previous reporting periods, change of accounting policies and correction of errors

On January 1st 2019, the Group implemented changes to its accounting policies in connection with the entry into force of the new accounting standard: IFRS 16 Leases, discussed in Note 4.1 to these consolidated condensed financial statements.

The Group decided to implement the standard starting from January 1st 2019. In accordance with the transitional provisions of IFRS 16, the new policies were adopted retrospectively: the cumulative impact of applying IFRS 16 was accounted for as an adjustment to equity as at January 1st 2019. Accordingly, the comparative data for the financial year 2018 has not been restated (modified retrospective approach).

The Group recorded no material changes of estimated amounts reported in prior periods, where such changes would have a material effect on the current interim reporting period.

5. Seasonality and cyclicality of business in the reporting period

There was no seasonality or cyclicality in the Group's business in the reporting period.

6. Material changes to reporting items, including amounts which significantly affect assets, liabilities, equity, net profit/(loss) or cash flows and which are non-typical due to their nature, value, effect or frequency

All material changes to reporting items after the end of the last annual reporting period, i.e. 2018, are presented in the key sections of the financial statements and supplemented with additional information contained in the relevant notes to the financial statements.

On March 21st 2019, LOTOS Exploration and Production Norge AS signed an RBL credit facility agreement (financing for upstream projects) with a bank syndicate, with a limit of up to USD 220m. The syndicate comprises BNP Paribas, Skandinaviska Enskilda Banken AB, PKO BP S.A., PEKAO S.A. and Bank Gospodarstwa Krajowego. Under the RBL, the banks issued two guarantees:

- NOK 991.4m guarantee in respect of Sleipner DSA decommissioning liabilities, issued by Bank BNP Paribas in favour of Exxon Exploration and Production Norge AS,
- NOK 148.4m guarantee in respect of Heimdal decommissioning liabilities, issued by PKO Bank Polski in favour of Spirit Energy Norway AS.

As a result of the guarantee issued in favour of Exxon Exploration and Production Norge AS, on April 10th 2019 Nordea Bank Norge ASA released funds from the escrow account in the amount of NOK 998m, recognised in prior reporting periods under Other non-current assets. As a consequence, an amount of PLN 440.8m was presented in the consolidated statement of cash flows as cash flows from investing activities under: Funds for future costs of decommissioning of oil and gas extraction facilities.

Agreement to which LOTOS Exploration and Production Norge AS is a party

LOTOS Exploration and Production Norge AS ("LOTOS E&P Norge AS") was a party to proceedings held before an arbitration court in Norway in connection with claims filed by Single Buoy Moorings Inc. ("SBM"), the supplier of the MOPU (Mobile Offshore Production Unit) for operation of the YME field, against Talisman Energy Norge AS, the operator of the YME field ("Talisman", "Operator") and the other YME licence holders. The share of SBM's claims attributable to LOTOS E&P Norge AS was 20%.

In 2013, Talisman Energy Norge AS ("Talisman", the then operator of the YME field) and Single Buoy Moorings Inc. ("SBM", owner of the MOPU) announced that an agreement was reached to terminate all existing contracts and agreements executed by the parties in connection with the YME project and remove the defective MOPU from the YME field.

SBM paid USD 470m to the consortium members, and Talisman Energy, on behalf of the licence holders, agreed to make the necessary preparations and remove the platform from the field. Under the agreement, SBM was responsible for towing the MOPU to the port and its scrapping, whereas following completion of certain works, the ownership of elements of the YME field in situ subsea infrastructure delivered by SBM should be transferred to the consortium members, who would be required to perform site restoration (and disassembly) activities related to the subsea infrastructure. Each of the parties will cover the costs of its scope of decommissioning work as set out in the agreement.

In accordance with the agreement made with SBM, the balance of the Group's share in the amount due to the consortium members under the agreement (USD 81.8m) was transferred to the YME project escrow account, to be gradually released to finance the removal of the MOPU and related infrastructure from the field, in accordance with the agreement.

On August 22nd 2016, the YME project partners completed evacuation of the defective MOPU from the field. In Q1 2017, the caisson (element of the subsea infrastructure) was inspected. As a result of the inspection it was found that the caisson can stand without additional support until 2019 (provided that it is inspected on a semi-annual basis and its condition remains unimpaired).

On August 11th 2017, SBM Offshore confirmed the conclusion of an agreement with a majority of MOPU insurers to settle insurance claims relating to the faulty execution of the MOPU. On September 10th 2018, SBM announced that the insurance claim concerning the YME project was fully and finally settled. The gross amount received by SBM as insurance compensation was USD 390m. The share of LOTOS E&P Norge AS (net of the cost of legal services and other expenses) was expected at USD 30.7m. In 2018, the Group recognised its share in the compensation under Other income, in the amount of PLN 118.3m.

On March 5th 2019, LOTOS E&P Norge AS received cash of USD 31.1m as the final settlement of insurance claims.

In the six months ended June 30th 2019, there were no material settlements under court or other proceedings, save for those presented above.

2.1 Accounting policies

The accounting policies and calculation methods applied in the preparation of these interim condensed separate financial statements are the same as those applied in the preparation of the separate financial statements for 2018 (see Note 6 to the separate financial statements for 2018), except to the extent of the policies which were introduced following the adoption, as of January 1st 2019, of the new standard IFRS 16 Leases. For a discussion of the effect of the new standards on the Company's accounting policies, see Note 4 to the separate financial statements for 2018 and below.

Overview of the standard

IFRS 16 Leases
IFRS 16 is effective for annual periods beginning on or after January 1st 2019 and has been endorsed by the European Union. It replaces the previously applied IAS 17 as well as IFRIC 4, SIC-15 and SIC-27.	The new standard introduces a single lease accounting model in the lessee's accounting books, which is similar to the recognition of finance leases under IAS 17. Under IFRS 16, a contract is a lease or contains a lease component if it transfers the right to control the use of the identified asset for a given period for consideration. An essential element that differentiates the definitions of lease under IAS 17 and IFRS 16 is the requirement to exercise control over a specific asset used, identified in the contract explicitly or implicitly. The right-of-use is conveyed where the lessee has both the right to direct the identified asset's use and to obtain substantially all the economic benefits from that use in the period. If the definition of lease is satisfied, the lessee recognises a right-of-use asset and a lease liability, initially measured at the present value of the lease payments to be made over the lease term. Expenditure related to the use of leased assets, previously largely included in cost of services, is now classified as depreciation and interest expense. Right-of-use assets are depreciated using the straight-line method, while lease liabilities are accounted for using the effective interest rate.

Selected accounting policies

The Company as a lessee

The Company uses a single accounting model for leases under which the lessee recognises right-of-use assets and lease liabilities for all leases except short-term leases and leases of low-value assets.

Short-term leases are leases with a term of 12 months or less, containing no purchase options. In particular, the Company defines as short-term leases contracts made for an indefinite term which may be terminated on a short notice (up to 12 months) without any significant penalty imposed on the party.

The materiality threshold defined by the Company to identify low-value leases is PLN 20 thousand. The value of the underlying asset is measured based on the value of the asset when it is new, regardless of the age of the leased asset.

An asset is typically identified by being explicitly specified in a contract, but an asset can also be identified by being implicitly specified at the time it is made available for use by the customer.
The Company recognises a right-of-use asset and a lease liability upon commencement of a contract under which control of the use of specified assets is transferred for a certain period of time. The date of commencement of a lease contract is the date on which the leased asset is made available to the Company as the lessee.

A right-of-use asset is initially measured at cost which includes:

- the amount of the lease liability initially measured,
- any lease payments made at or prior to commencement, less any lease incentives received,
- any initial direct costs incurred by the lessee,
- the initial estimate of the costs of dismantling and removing the underlying asset and restoring the site on which it is located.

Right-of-use assets are recognised in the statement of financial position as property, plant and equipment. Perpetual usufruct right to land acquired for a consideration or received free of charge is recognised in the same manner as other lease contracts (as right-of-use assets and lease liabilities). To calculate assets and liabilities related to perpetual usufruct, the Company conducts an analysis to determine the anticipated term of perpetual usufruct. Once the anticipated term of perpetual usufruct has been determined, the lease liability is calculated in accordance with general principles. The perpetual usufruct rights to land recognised as at December 31st 2018 have been reclassified by the Company as right-of-use assets and recognised based on the amount determined before the date of transition to IFRS 16.

After the lease commencement date, the right-of-use asset is measured at cost less accumulated depreciation and accumulated impairment losses. If there is a lease modification, the right-of-use asset is adjusted to the remeasurement of the lease liability (reflecting changes resulting from the lease modification or revision of the discount rate).

A lease liability is initially measured at the present value of lease payments outstanding at that date, including:

- fixed lease payments net of any lease incentives,
- variable lease payments that depend on an index or a rate, initially measured using the index or rate as at the commencement date;
- amounts expected to be payable by the lessee under residual value guarantees;
- the exercise price of a purchase option if exercise of that option by the lessee is reasonably certain;
- lease termination penalties if the lessee is entitled to exercise the option to terminate the lease.

Lease payments do not include variable charges that depend on external factors. Variable lease payments not included in the initial measurement of a lease liability are recognised directly in profit or loss.

After initial recognition, the Company measures lease liabilities by:

- increasing the carrying amount to reflect interest on the lease liability,
- reducing the carrying amount to reflect the lease payments made, and
- remeasuring the carrying amount in order to take into account a lease reassessment or modification, or to take account of revised substantially fixed lease payments, including increases or reductions due to index changes in the case of index-linked contracts.

Upon lease commencement, and to the extent that the costs are not included in the carrying amount of another asset in accordance with applicable standards other than IFRS 16, the lessee recognises in profit or loss both interest on the lease liability and variable lease payments not included in the measurement of the lease liability in the period in which the event or condition that triggers payment occurs.

Lease payments are discounted using the interest rate implicit in the lease or the Company's incremental borrowing rate when the interest rate implicit in the lease cannot be readily determined. To determine the incremental borrowing rate, the Company takes into account the type of contract, the duration of the contract, the currency of the contract and the potential margin it would have to pay to external financial institutions if it wanted to enter into such a transaction on the financial market.

The Company determined incremental borrowing rates in a breakdown by contract currency and taking into account contract term, based on the time brackets presented below:

- short-term contracts (12 months or shorter),
- contracts for a term of 1 to 2 years (inclusive),
- contracts for a term of 2 to 5 years (inclusive),
- contracts for a term of 5 to 10 years (inclusive),
- contracts for a term of more than 10 years.

The process of determining a current incremental borrowing rate consists of the following steps:

- an analysis of the lessee's current financing structure (e.g., the debt instruments held by the lessee and their terms);
- determination of the appropriate reference rate – assuming specific currency, economic conditions and lease term;
- analysis of other material lease terms, including the nature of the underlying assets.

To calculate discount rates for the purposes of IFRS 16, the Company assumes that the discount rate should reflect the cost that it would have to pay to borrow the funds necessary to purchase the leased asset.

The Company enters into lease contracts mainly in the Polish złoty, for which it has assigned WIBOR for a given term as the base discount rate.

Effect of IFRS 16 on the financial statements

The Company carried out an analysis aimed at identifying the agreements under which it uses assets owned by third parties. Each of the agreements so identified was reviewed in terms of satisfying the criteria to be classified as a lease in accordance with IFRS 16. Based on such review, the Company calculated the effect of introduction of IFRS 16 on the individual items of its financial statements.

The Company also made appropriate changes to its accounting policies and operational procedures. It developed and implemented methodologies for correct identification of agreements which are leases as well as for collection of data necessary to correctly account for such transactions.

IFRS 16 introduces a new definition of lease. However, the Company used a practical expedient for transition and did not re-assess whether the contracts previously classified included leases. Therefore, the definition of lease compliant with IAS 17 and IFRIC 4 will continue to apply to lease contracts, concluded or amended before January 1st 2019.

Below are presented the individual adjustments made due to the implementation of IFRS 16.

Recognition of lease liabilities

Upon adopting IFRS 16, the Company recognised lease liabilities related to agreements previously classified as operating leases in accordance with the requirements of IAS 17. These liabilities have been measured at the present value of lease payments outstanding at the start of application of IFRS 16, discounted using the Company's interest rate as at the date of adoption of the standard.

Lease liability	Jan 1 2019
Operating lease liabilities as at December 31st 2018	46.4
Effect of discounting using the Group's incremental borrowing rate as at January 1st 2019	(19.2)
Short-term leases recognised as expense in the period	(14.6)
Other[(1)]	119.5
Total lease liabilities	132.1

[(1)] Applicable mainly to perpetual usufruct of land not classified as non-cancellable operating lease as at December 31st 2018.

Use of practical expedients

When first applying IFRS 16, the Company applied the following practical expedients available under the standard:

- application of a single discount rate to a portfolio of leases with similar characteristics,
- treatment of operating leases whose remaining term as at January 1st 2019 was less than 12 months as short-term leases,
- exclusion of initial direct costs from the measurement of the right-of-use assets at the date of initial application, and

Effect on equity

The implementation of IFRS 16 had no effect on retained earnings or equity as at January 1st 2019 due to the fact that the right-of-use assets and lease liabilities were recognised in the same amount.

Effect on financial ratios

Given the fact that practically all leases were recognised in the consolidated statement of financial position, the implementation of IFRS 16 by the Group affected its balance sheet ratios, including the debt to equity ratio. In addition, the implementation of IFRS 16 resulted in changes to the profit metrics (e.g. operating profit, EBITDA) and to cash flows from operating activities. The Group analysed the implications of these changes for the fulfilment of covenants contained in its credit facility agreements. No risk of default was identified.

On January 1st 2019, the Company implemented changes to its accounting policies in connection with the entry into force of the new accounting standard: IFRS 16 Leases, discussed in Note 2.1 to these separate condensed financial statements.

The Company decided to implement the standard starting from January 1st 2019. In accordance with the transitional provisions of IFRS 16, the new policies were adopted retrospectively: the cumulative impact of applying IFRS 16 was accounted for as an adjustment to equity as at January 1st 2019.
